For the fifth time within six months fire broke out early to-day in the six-story tenement known as the "Jolly House," at 164 East One Hundred and Tenth street. Twenty families live in the house, which is owned by Cyrille Carreau, whose place of business is at Bovey and Grand street.

About 4:30 A. M. a policeman saw smoke coming from the hall and promptly sent an alarm, after which he awakened the sleeping tenants.

There was a great deal of excitement. There are about fifty children in the house, whose parents were forced to take to the fire-escapes.

The fire started in a closet on the first floor back and ran up the stairway to the top stories. There was so much smoke in the halls that escape by the stairs was impossible.

Some of the people went up on the roof, but most of them crowded to the fire-escapes. Men and women, half clad, with children, many of whom were in the arms of their mothers, were seen climbing the ladders in a few minutes. They were helped down by the police and firemen.

Although the utmost excitement prevailed no casualties occurred and every one got out safely.

The fire, which had eaten through the air-shaft, spread through the two upper floors and gave the flames a hard battle before the flames were put under control.

The top floor was gutted, while the fifth story was badly damaged. Considerable water damage was done in the lower floors.

The families of George Popp, Thomas Moore, Peter Carlton and the Jansen family lived on the top floor. They lost everything. The loss to the other tenants was slight.

In the ground floor, where Adolph Wasserman has a grocery, Tony Angelorilla, a shoemaker, occupies the store on the east side.

The housekeeper of the tenement told a strange story in connection with the fire this morning. She said that she had seen a man, who she said was a stranger, enter the house about 4:30 A. M. and go to the closet on the first floor. She said that she saw him enter the closet and that she saw him come out with a bundle in his arms. She said that she saw him go to the fire-escape and that she saw him climb down. She said that she saw him go to the fire-escape and that she saw him climb down.

It is likely that the fire started from the man's bundle. The building was damaged to the extent of $2,000. None of the tenants was injured.

VIENNA, April 10.—Great excitement has been caused by an attempt to assassinate Cardinal Vaszary, the Primate of Hungary.

The Cardinal was walking with his secretary, when a well-dressed young man rushed upon him and made desperate attempts to stab him with a knife.

The Cardinal stepped to one side, evading the blows, while the secretary received two severe stabs at the hands of the desperate assassin.

The would-be murderer was arrested, but refused to give any information as to his motive or his identity. Cardinal Vaszary was unhurt.

There seems to be no doubt that the attempt to murder the Cardinal was prompted by the intense struggle now going on in Hungary in relation to civil marriage and the baptism of children of mixed marriages, in which the Cardinal is looked upon as the leader of the ecclesiastical party.

The fact is recalled that in December last the now Cardinal Vaszary, who was then Primate, was attacked by a young man with a revolver.

The young man claimed to be the son of a magistrate and entered into conversation with the Cardinal on the subject of the marriage controversy, pretending to support the Primate's views. Suddenly he produced a revolver and compelled the Primate to give up his ring, gems and diamonds.

In the present instance the assassin appears to be not a robber, but a fanatic.

Thirty-eight witnesses had been sworn by the prosecution and each had contributed his link to the chain of evidence on which the prosecutor bases his charge of murder in the first degree against Dr. Robert Wellesey Buchanan, yet when the fourth week of the trial before Recorder Smyth, in Part III of the court of sessions, opened this morning there was still much more to be heard, and it was thought probable that another week would be consumed in the completion of the proof by the people.

Judge Cowing, who is assigned to the April term in Part III, was on the bench with the recorder when court opened, for he had adjourned his court for only one week, last Monday. Again court prior Henry Smith convened the April term, and again, after a short consultation with Assistant District Attorney Osborne and Lawyer Charles W. Brooke, of counsel for Buchanan, Judge Cowing adjourned for one week, and the trial was resumed on Monday.

It is almost certain, however, that on Monday next Judge Cowing must adjourn again, for the prosecution has called more than fifty witnesses against them to combat the defense will require a week or more at least to present its case.

The cross-examination of Dr. Henry P. Loomis by the erudite lawyer-detector-pathologist of San Francisco, and the first business of to-day was the redirect examination of this witness by the prosecution.

Mr. O'Sullivan had clearly shaken Dr. Loomis's testimony in some respects, and it was the duty of the prosecution to rehabilitate him before the jury.

Dr. Loomis was frequently told in his testimony that he was ill on Friday, Mr. Wellesey Buchanan taking his place in the trial.

Mr. Wellesey Buchanan is at home seriously ill with grip and fever, and is unable to attend court.

Policeman John Deveraux, of the West Twentieth street station appeared in Jefferson Market court this morning with a long scar on the chin, in which the surgeon had taken four stitches; a deep cut on the right hand at the base of the thumb, and a long cut over the stomach, which fortunately did no more damage than to ruin his coat and trousers.

All this was the result of a fight in the hands of John Cuff, a longshoreman, whom Deveraux tried to arrest late last night.

Just before midnight, while preparing for a post, the policeman, who was standing on West Twenty-sixth street, had his attention attracted by cries of "Murder! Police! Help!" which came from the second floor of the tenement, all West Twenty-sixth street, between Tenth and Eleventh avenues. On running towards the place, the policeman saw at a window a woman, only partially dressed, and with her hair flying in all directions. She was screaming at the top of her voice.

Before the policeman could get to the place, the head was quickly withdrawn, as if jerked violently backward by some one within.

Deveraux stopped a second to blow his whistle, and then dashed up the stairs. He found the head lying on the floor, and the body of the woman lying on the floor, with her arms outstretched. He found the woman lying on the floor, with her arms outstretched.

He hammered, but as no attention was paid to his summons, he with one push went into the room, and found the woman lying on the floor, with her arms outstretched.

On the floor, crouching in different corners, were two partly-dressed women, screaming and crying, and the room was the cause of it all, armed with a razor.

Cuff pulled his razor freely, while the woman, armed with nothing but his short, billy, and a piece of wood, which he had taken from the wall, was almost powerless.

As the policeman entered the door, Cuff, who was in the act of striking the woman, started for him with a wild yell, and a desperate hand-to-hand encounter ensued.

FIRE DEPARTMENT IN A FIX.

Let Contracts for Placing Wires Which Can't Be Placed.

BRUISED, SHOT AND ROASTED.

Desperate Attempt of Unknown Person to Murder Thos. Bassett.

A Witness in the Investigation of the Death of James P. Trynor.

HARRIS'S CASE POSTPONED.

Mr. Howe Failed to Go Up to See the Governor.

The Matter Will Be Discussed in Albany Next Thursday.

The Fire Department is in a mess of trouble. Contracts have been let for placing its wires in high tension substations on Second avenue, from Forty-second to Sixty-third streets, but the Consolidated Subway Company refuses to furnish the accommodations.

At the meeting of the Board of Electrical Control in the Mayor's office to-day a communication was read from President Robbins, of the Fire Department, asking the Board to take steps to compel the Consolidated Company to make room for the fire alarm wires.

"We can't do it," said Mayor Gilroy. "We have no control over the Consolidated Company. It is a private corporation, and we have no right to interfere with its business."

"But, Mr. Mayor, our contracts are on file," said President Robbins. "You should have informed yourself of this before you refused the request."

Permission was granted to the Empire Subway Company to lay its wires on the following streets and avenues: One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, from First to Third avenues; Sixty-fifth street, from Ninth to Eleventh avenues; Seventh avenue, from One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street to One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street.

To avoid tearing up the pavement on the latter thoroughfares, the subway will be laid under the sidewalks on both sides of the street.

The Consolidated Company was authorized to construct subways on Pearl street, from John street to Houston street; Battery place and Park place, from Greenwich to West streets; Spruce street, from West street to Houston street; and from Fourth to Forty-second streets.

The application of the United States Electric Light Company for a franchise on Fifth avenue, from Forty-second to Fifty-fifth streets, was denied, as the Board would constitute the tearing up of the pavement.

Commissioners Storms and Hess were appointed to investigate the matter.

MILLVILLE, N. J., April 10.—The house of Thomas Bassett, near South Vineland, was discovered to be on fire by neighbors this morning about 3 o'clock, and when they arrived at the scene they found Mr. Bassett lying on the ground near the burned building with his skull crushed in.

Bassett was one of the witnesses in the case of James P. Trynor, who was found dead under suspicious circumstances Saturday. The case is very mysterious.

"That a murderous assault was made upon Bassett when his house was fired," said a witness, "is a fact which is a matter of public knowledge."

The ball had entered over the right eye, and came out over the left. His head is covered with bruises made by some blunt instrument.

Bassett became conscious at 8 o'clock this morning and made a short statement.

He said that at 4 o'clock this morning he found himself lying on the floor of his bedroom which was filled with smoke. He tried to get up, but he was unable to do so, and he was covered with blood, which had been turned over to the coroner.

Members of the Italian family who formerly lived with Trynor, who was found dead on Saturday, it is reported, visited Bassett yesterday. Mr. Bassett has been in the hospital since.

William F. Howe, of counsel for Wire-Poisoner Carlisle W. Harris, had expected to go to Albany to-day and explain to Gov. Flower the value of the so-called newly discovered evidence in Harris's favor.

Albany at the last moment he was obliged to postpone his trip, owing to legal engagements which could not be put off, and he telegraphed the Governor to that effect.

He expects to present Harris's case to the Governor on Thursday, arrangements having been hurriedly made this morning to that end.

An Albany dispatch to "The Evening World" states that the papers in the case were filed with the Governor this afternoon.

SING SING, N. Y., April 10.—The prison officials seem anxious as Harris himself is nearly to decide whether the condemned medical student will live or die.

As soon as the decision is rendered it will be telegraphed to the prison. Harris has requested Warden Brown to let him hear promptly the first news that comes from Albany. Although the decision is not expected to-day, Harris looks for a despatch from either his mother or counsel Howe as to what transpired regarding his case before the governor to-day. Harris is bracing himself up to receive the news, good or bad, when it comes.

He was in good spirits, but somewhat nervous, when he handed his mail this morning. The letters had all been opened by Warden Brown before they were turned over to the prisoners. Harris's case is a matter of public interest, and the governor's decision will be a matter of public interest.

It was reported that Mayor Gilroy would accompany Mr. Daly on his next hunt for the alleged drow, but this morning he had not made up his mind whether he would be one of the raiding party.
